

Workplace Literacy Statistics

Six in 10 workers will require training before 2027, but only half of workers are seen to have access to adequate training opportunities today.

80% of major employers are having trouble finding skilled workers. Post-pandemic, Canada has faced persistent labour and skills shortages across most regions, sectors and occupations.

Skills are a core component of human capital. In terms of earnings, the five most valuable skills are troubleshooting, operations monitoring, time management, reading comprehension, and monitoring.

Investment in workplace literacy also leads to cost savings from reduced errors and waste.

A one-dollar investment in training returns a benefit to the employer of $1.38.
